SOMETIMES A LITTLE RAIN MUST FALL

As a former COO, author and motivational speaker, Dora L. Raine knows all about rain, especially the rain of life's circumstances. Born in the Deep South and raised in California, Dora grew up around, and learned from a plethora of leaders. Throughout high school, college, and graduate school she surrounded herself with scholars and mentors, where she gave her life to Christ while in college. It was however, through the harsh trials of pursuing a career that Dora learned what it truly means to dance in the rain.

REINING IN THE BOARDROOM

As the Chief Operating Officer for Brandon Enterprises, encompassing 12 of the fastest growing healthcare and franchise companies in the Mississippi Delta, Dora was responsible for the company's daily operations and growth throughout the Southern states. As a woman in the traditionally male-oriented, corporate world, Dora learned to harness her passion to motivate not just herself but others. Frequently referred to as the Motivator in Stealth Mode for her ability to bring out the best in people, Dora was lauded for her practical street-savvy style.

THROWING OUT THE UMBRELLA

Drawing on her vast experience as a successful corporate executive, businesswoman and career coach, Dora candidly shares with her audience both the steps of success and devastating pitfalls that business leaders frequently can make when seeking profitability alone. Her view is radically different, in that business leadership is a moment-to-moment choice and not about job title or possessions. Encouraging her audience to look deeper introspectively at their business presence, goals and strategies, Dora asks, would you do business with yourself? Dora excels in focusing on business operations, leadership, success strategies, and leaving a legacy.
